Mitchell wins battle in area border war

County Board approves incorporation map

By Scott Kelly
Staff writer

Mitchell supporters won a huge victory Wednesday when the Madison County Board approved the 7.28-square-mile incorporation map. At the same time, the board rejected a smaller compromise map put forth by surrounding cities.

In a 19-8 vote, board members found that the larger map met the only two criteria under consideration. The criteria were that the map fits with the county's land use plan, passed in the 1970s, and that the land to be incorporated had sufficient tax base to support its people.

"We won," said Ron Trimmer, Mitchell political action director, though the fight is far from over.

"A lot of work was done in this building over the past two weeks," said Max Merz, an incorporation Committee member, referring to the Administration Building in Edwardsville where the County Board meets.

"We're pretty sure Granite City, Edwardsville and Pontoon Beach will file objections. I think we're OK with Union Electric and not sure about the Muellers," Merz said. He referred to 1,500 acres belonging to the utility company that will most likely annex into Granite City and the property owned by the Muellers, who are seeking annexation into Edwardsville. Granite City Mayor Ron Selph, who attended the board meeting, said he isn't certain what course Granite City will pursue.

Edwardsville Mayor Gary Neipert told reporters that his city never opposed Mitchell's right to vote but rather wanted to make certain everything about the incorporation was done in accordance with state laws.

Board members first voted on the compromise map put forth by Edwardsville, Granite City and Pontoon Beach. It was recommended by the Land Use Committee as the best map, but the board as a whole soundly defeated it. They then voted on Mitchell's map, and approved it.

Fight far from over

By Scott Kelly
Staff writer

Although they won a milestone victory Wednesday, supporters' fight to incorporate Mitchell is far from over.

All the Madison County Board did was approve the 7.28-square-mile map presented by Mitchell supporters because it met two criteria. State's Attorney William Haine said that because board members approved the map, they said it fit with the county's land use plan, and they believed the lands included in the map constituted a sufficient tax base for the village to provide necessary municipal services.

Any other questions will have to be settled in court, such as surrounding cities questioning if the village would actually have 7,500 residents.

"If the proposed village is not 7,500, then that will be tested in a court of law with a judge who will determine that," Haine said. It was not up to the County Board to determine that fact.

Lawsuits, such as the one Mitchell organizers filed earlier this week against Edwardsville for annexing property that cut off a portion of the Mitchell Fire Protection District, also would be settled in court.

Anyone who doesn't agree with the board's action, which was correct and legal according to its own prerogatives, can hire lawyers and file lawsuits, Haine said.

In the meantime, an actual incorporation vote won't happen for some time because of state law.

"The Mitchell Incorporation Committee will take the map they favor to court, which they cannot do

Dozens testify at hearing, support county homes

By Dennis Grubbaugh
Staff writer

Hundreds of residents gathered Tuesday to deliver one unmistakable message: Do not close the Madison County Nursing Home and Sheltered Care Home.

One by one, more than 70 residents testified during a day of hearings on the county's plans to close the two homes as of Nov. 30, while hundreds of others crowded into the Edwardsville High School auditorium to offer support.

Many of the speakers were reduced to tears as they recounted experiences involving loved ones and the high level of care they received. Not one person testified in favor of closing the homes.

Debbie Groetka, a Collinsville woman who has been working behind the scenes to keep the homes open, presented petitions with signatures of 8,600 residents who want to maintain the homes.

She received a standing ovation as several large stacks were placed on the stage in the auditorium.

The signatures were collected in a grass-roots movement that began after the county voted in April to close the homes, she said.

More than 450 people signed in for the hearings, and many stayed for the entire five hours of testimony, applauding loudly for every speaker. From 10 a.m. to 3:15 p.m., the conversation focused on the nursing home.

The remainder of the day was

"The residents of these homes are powerless in the face of bureaucracy."

The Rev. Bob Goddard

devoted to the hearing on the sheltered care home.

The hearings were sponsored by the Illinois Department of Public Health. Hearing officer John Pitzer said all written and oral testimony will be submitted to the Illinois Health Facilities Planning Board for a final decision Aug. 13 or 14, with the applications on the two homes to be considered separately. The state must issue permits to close the homes.

More than 50 people spoke on behalf of the nursing home, located at 2121 Troy Road, Edwardsville. Fred Young, an Alton alderman, stirred the crowd when he talked about his mother, Florence Young Burns.

"My mother's care at the county nursing home has given my family peace of mind," he said. "If Mr. (Neilson) Hagauer (the late county chairman) knew what was going on today he'd be turning over in his grave."

Young's 78-year-old mother suffers from dementia. He wheeled her to the podium where he spoke and then wheeled her back up the long aisle as the crowd applauded loudly.

County finances were a large part of the testimony.

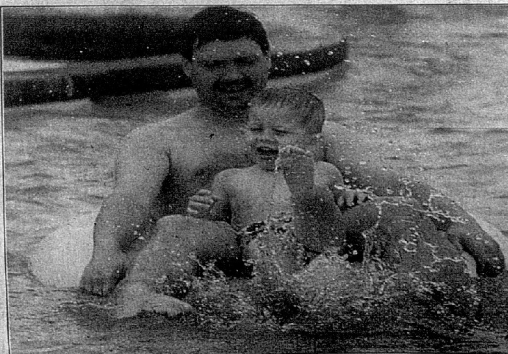

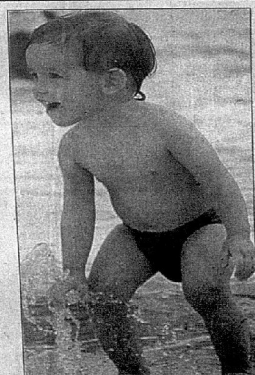

Kelly Martin, the nursing home's quality assurance administrator, said that nursing home and sheltered care spending has been under budget since at least 1990.

"Finances cannot be a credible argument for displacing these residents," he said. "We're asking the state to exercise restraint on a county that is bent on destroying itself by the way it treats its older residents."

County Board members used finances in their argument to close the homes, saying that residents

Stupidity triggers wrong responses

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

When people do stupid things, they should not be surprised when bad things happen because of it.

And when people do stupid things with guns...

Well, that's just plain stupid. Missouri prosecutors have declined pressing charges against the parents of a child who found a sawed-off shotgun in the closet and killed another child with it.

Stupid. Some time ago, again in Missouri, a man was showing off his guns to some kids, handed a loaded gun to a child, and was amazed when the gun went off and another kid was struck.

Stupid. And last week, the wife of a former Granite City alderman was charged with unlawful use of a weapon after she allegedly forgot it was in her purse and brought it into the Madison County Courthouse.

Stupid. In the past week, our fax machine has been flooded with press releases from U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin's office touting his new bill that would require trigger locks and other such things to keep guns from the hands of children.

Basically, to keep stupid people from doing stupid things that endanger kids who don't know any better.

While I have some problems with the actual legislation, the intent is admirable. I don't think I would trust Durbin on this issue.

You see, he doesn't like guns, and he likes gun control. I am the opposite.

(And that's quite a rare find in the newspaper business. The truth is, if I ever get around to paying my dues, I'll be a member of the National Rifle Association again.)

While everybody wants to reduce gun violence and accidents — two different topics requiring different approaches — the two sides have different ideas about how to do it.

Gun control advocates simply don't trust their neighbors to own guns.

Gun control opponents promote education, reasonable laws and punishing the moron who violates those laws.

We gun owners are a little paranoid whenever legislators talk about gun control. In part, it's a question of "reasonableness" because the legislation is sponsored by those who hate guns and don't understand them.

Because of that, the proposed legislation either inadvertently goes too far or is considered a "stepping stone" to even more regulations.

That bothers gun owners. You see, most of us don't do stupid things.

Most of us don't kill people. And we get upset at those who do.

In the first case, what kind of a moron leaves a loaded sawed-off shotgun in a closet with little kids crawling around — for that matter, owning a sawed-off shotgun is a federal offense, although they don't take it as seriously as owning, say, an illegal machine gun. Perhaps if they actually enforced and prosecuted those laws, people would be less apt to break them.

Scott Cousins

In the second, why is a drunk handing loaded weapons to children?

When I was taught gun safety, the first rule is to treat every gun as if it was loaded. I don't think that has changed.

That means when someone hands me a gun or I pick it up, the first thing I do is check to see if it's loaded. I don't point it at people, loaded or not — and the last thing I do before I give it back is to open the bolt so the next person can see if it's loaded.

The second, or maybe the third, rule is guns and alcohol don't mix — ever.

In the last case, the woman and her husband were upset because she was "traumatized" and "treated like a common criminal."

I'm sorry, but if she's convicted, she will be a common criminal, and guns are kept out of courthouses for good reasons, and people who try to bring them in need to be traumatized.

Another point is that carrying the weapon in her car or purse was violating the law in both Illinois and Missouri, neither of which have concealed carry laws.

"Oh come on," you might say, "Everybody does it!"

A lot of people do, and "reasonable" legislation to allow them to do so should be considered.

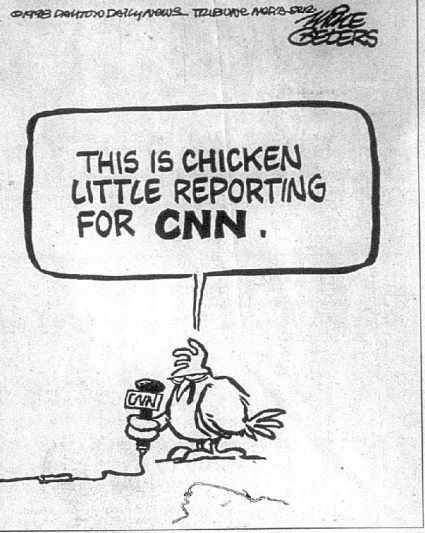

But if it would ever pass (and as long as Chicago is in Illinois I think it's doubtful) people would still be held responsible for the safe storage and use of their guns, and those guns would still be banned from courthouses.

You might think I'm being a little hard on people who either made a little mistake or will have to live with the mistake for the rest of their lives.

Too bad.

You see, when somebody makes a stupid mistake with a gun, somebody else — often a child — pays the price.

And it's the stupid people who should pay for that, not me.

READER'S POLL RESPONSES

Should developers and municipalities be given special permits to burn on days when individuals are prohibited?

"No. Municipal services are there because of individuals. Municipalities should set an example. They are not any better than individuals. We voted the people in hoping they'll set a good example and do what is good for the city."

DAN McDOWELL
Granite City

"For developers they clean ground for buildings and etc. Well I may not be a developer, but I often clear some bushes or tree limbs from my property, but I can't burn so cause I'm one, I'm still as good as a developer."

CHLOE SIMPSON
Granite City

"No. One, developers and municipalities would most likely burn larger quantities than individuals. Two, burning decreases air quality regardless of who is burning. Three, asthma is already on the rise and would be worse. Four, wastes resources that could be possibly recycled."

Do you think the U.S. Congress should pass legislation prohibiting the burning of the American flag?

"No. Ever since Congress let the flag fly 24 hours a day, it has been mistreated. It flies in inclement weather. I've seen it in shreds. I've seen it in improper lights by departments, companies and home owners."

"Have you watched spectators? They don't know what it means to salute the flag for which our men have died. The pledge of allegiance has been eliminated in God and our flag and parents. The government has stuck their power in places it doesn't belong. They better go back in history and learn what the flag stands for."

CHLOE SIMPSON
Granite City

"Yes. Burning an American flag is awesome, sickening, deplorable. Would anyone burn the Holy Bible? Or the American Constitution? Only a few radicals would for the publicity from the news media. Such acts should never be shown. It plays in the hands of the perpetrators. Jail sentences should be imposed."

STEVE KONKOVICH
Granite City

"Yes. The flag is not just a piece of cloth. It stands for the many lives of persons who fought and died for this country to preserve our freedom."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Home proves special

TO THE EDITOR: Unfortunately, there seems to be a mistaken idea that all nursing homes are the same. A nursing home is a nursing home. Wrong!

First of all we all need to understand that all nursing homes are not equal. From my extensive experience, Madison County Nursing Home is a superb facility. Not because of its appearance, but because of the attitude and philosophy of the staff. The old saying, "you can't judge a book by its cover," rings true.

Care rendered to vulnerable people is driven by positive attitudes of caring people who staff these institutions. Finding another home of this quality would be difficult. My mother has lived in several facilities. By far this is the most caring and professional staff we have come to know. At this stage of my mother's condition this would not be a positive change, especially knowing and having the confidence of the positive care she is now receiving. My mother is not up to change at this point.

I am not aware of all the details of the community and the facts that have brought this action to pass, but I am especially disturbed that some of the members who brought this action to pass are officials in some way to privatize nursing homes. Many would consider this a conflict of interest.

Some in the community feel the value of the land on which the nursing stands may be a significant factor in the dismantling of this caring and effective facility. This home is also more affordable to those with very limited resources.

With the ever-increasing population of elderly folks, the demand for more beds is inevitable. Someone seems to have played with the numbers in the available beds in the county.

Madison County Nursing Home and its quality did not just happen. It happened by caring and dedication to a mission of providing the best of care to the vulnerable in their final years.

Please listen to those who are directly affected by this decision. Please take compassion into consideration. Will there be a quality facility like Madison County Nursing Home for you and your family when you come to this point?

GUEST COLUMN

Declaration incorporates wisdom of the ages

The Christian theologian Thomas Aquinas affirmed the right of subjects to depose a king "if, becoming a tyrant, he abuses the royal power." In this he anticipated the thinking of 17th century English philosopher John Locke and of American patriots who declared their independence from the British crown in 1776.

According to John Locke's Second Treatise of Civil Government, the authority of political power derives from a social contract agreed to voluntarily by free, equal and independent men. That power loses its authority when, by violating the contract, it loses the consent of the parties thereto.

Locke conceded that the people are generally reluctant to exercise this power to dissolve ineffective or oppressive governments. "Great mistakes in the ruling part, many wrong and inconvenient laws, and all the slips of human frailty will be borne by the people without mutiny or murmur. But if a long train of abuses, prevarications and artifices, all tending the same way, make the design visible to the people, and they cannot but feel what they lie under, and see what they are doing, it is not to be wondered that they should then rouse themselves and endeavor to put the rule into such hands which may secure to them the ends for which government was at first erected."

Locke went to great lengths to distinguish liberty from license and to demonstrate that law is the liberator, not the oppressor, of man. "Law, in its true notion, is not so much the limitation as the direction of a free and intelligent agent to his proper interest, and prescribes no farther than is for the general good of those under that law," said Locke. He argued that "the end of law is not to abolish or restrain, but to preserve and enlarge freedom," emphasizing that freedom is not, however, "a liberty for every man to do what he lists."

"By protecting our God-given rights from the encroachment of government, they expand our freedom to pursue true happiness."

The Declaration of Independence, whose signing we celebrate this July, 222 years after its creation by Thomas Jefferson, enumerated the abuses of royal power that the Founding Fathers considered sufficient to justify their renunciation of the king's sovereignty. There, and in the Preamble to the Constitution of the United States, they spelled out the principles that formed the foundation of their vision of a better world. Thomas Aquinas, Cicero, Augustine, Thomas Aquinas and John Locke can be heard in both documents. The Declaration and the Constitution with its Bill of Rights incorporate the wisdom of the ages. By protecting our God-given rights from the encroachment of government, they expand our freedom to pursue true happiness.

As we look backward over the 222-year span of American history, let's be grateful not only for the gifts that God has given us directly, but also for those that have come to us through the wisdom of our Founding Fathers. Let's demonstrate our gratitude by preserving these gifts, so that our descendants will have reason to be grateful to us.

County, city hammer out housing project

Goal is to build affordable homes

By Scott Kelly
Staff writer MADISON

The county has stepped in to help Madison build affordable housing on sites the city is demolishing. The Madison County Board passed a resolution authorizing an $84,000 HOME program set aside for the city of Madison at Wednesday morning's regular board meeting. "Madison started an extensive program to demolish derelict housing (that is) burned out or no longer inhabitable," said board member Homer Henke, who serves on the Grants Committee. Madison owns several vacant lots, he said. The city is trying to build new homes for low and moderate income people so they can buy those homes and enhance the area, Henke said. County Board member Don Garrett, who represents Madison, was concerned that the houses will be built on lots that people want to use for other purposes.

"This is a decision of the city fathers of Madison to pick the areas where they want to build the new homes. We have no jurisdiction over that."

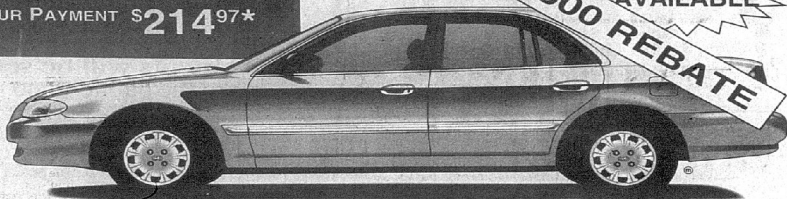

Homer Henke
Madison County Board member

Community development funds have to have the approval of the community, not the politicians, specifically in the area the funds are to be used. "This is a decision of the city fathers of Madison to pick the areas where they want to build the new homes," Henke said. "We have no jurisdiction over that." Madison leaders came to the county for the money, and it is their opinion the low-income housing will improve the city, Henke said. At Tuesday's Madison City Council meeting, the council approved giving Mayor John Hamm authority to enter into an agreement with Madison County Community Development for the program. Hamm said the project is moving along well, and there are now discussions between the prospective homeowners and contractors. If everything stays on schedule, he said, the first of the homes should be completed by November or December. — Some information provided by reporter Scott Cousins.

failed to pass a tax increase and bond issue for a new, combined home in March. At the same time, the auditor projected the homes will be in the red in coming years.

Hal Patton, an Edwardsville dentist and alderman, said there is no reason to close the homes on a financial basis since there is a $2.6 million surplus in the homes' fund.

Patton also said that a 1997 guide to nursing homes available in the public library showed Madison County's facility rated at No. 1 in the county and No. 28 out of 851 in the state. The quality of care was the most-expressed point of the day, with many people saying that other nursing homes compare poorly to Madison County's.

Jean Perry of Edwardsville said County Board members did not consider how the health of nursing home residents would be affected by their decision. Both of her elderly grandmothers died a short time after being moved to other homes after the county voted to close them.

"It's too late for my grandmothers, but if we can save any of the residents or the jobs of the workers it will be well worth it," Perry wrote in a statement.

Many residents said they had no idea that a vote among raising their taxes would become a catalyst for closing the homes. They spoke bitterly about the 15 members of the County Board who voted to close the homes.

"The residents of these homes are powerless in the face of bureaucracy," said the Rev. Bob Goddard of St. Paul United Church of Christ in Edwardsville.

County Board members "should not go to church on Sundays and turn their back on the powerless on Tuesdays," he said.

until after Aug. 18," Haine said. "They cannot do it now because it's not a year after the previous court order denying the previous map. That means this issue will not be voted on until the April municipal elections."

Until that happens, Mitchell supporters will be looking for "yes" votes from places such as Nameoki Township, which is divided between becoming part of Mitchell and remaining unincorporated. Board members from the Granite City area, including Don Rea and Ray Romine, said numerous residents in the township said they did not want to be part of Mitchell.

Max Merz of the Mitchell Incorporation Committee said the committee would probably wage a big political campaign in Nameoki to win votes.

Now that a map has been approved, it will be the only map on which there can be a vote. "All the other lands (Mitchell) has left out, they will not be able to have," Haine said, referring to Union Electric land and other property left off the map. "The map may be amended sometime later to be smaller pursuant to a court order or by the Mitchell Committee, but it cannot be larger."

The group cannot go back and add to its map the Chain of Rocks canal or the 1,500 acres owned by Union Electric, both of which were in the first map, Haine said.

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

When a woman obtains custody of the children in a divorce proceeding, the former husband will usually be granted visitation and ordered to pay child support. If the woman remarries, she may have a desire to have her new husband adopt the children. Before the parties agree to such an agreement, they should all be aware of the consequences of such an action.

If the stepfather adopts the children, he has an obligation to support the children from that point forward. If he and the natural mother are later divorced, he will still be ordered to pay child support. The natural father, on the other hand, will have his parental rights terminated in an adoption proceeding such as this. This means that he will have no more visitation rights with his children, and he will have no more obligation to pay child support.

The mother must realize that she is giving up any right she has to child support from the natural father if a stepfather adoption takes place. The question sometimes arises as to what happens if an adoption proceeding is started but the mother and stepfather later change their minds. A recent Illinois case addressed this issue.

In this matter, the mother asked the father to consent to an adoption of the children by herself and her new husband. The natural father appeared before a judge and signed the consent. The judge informed the father that he was terminating all rights and responsibilities with regard to the children. A few months later, the mother called the natural father and told him she had not gone through with the adoption because the children were opposed to it.

More than a year later, the mother returned to Court in an effort to collect back child support. She argued that since the adoption was never finalized and her ex-husband was made aware of this, his obligation to provide support continued. The Court noted that the ex-husband stopped seeing his children because of the consent to adoption. They felt it was the mother's duty to inform him that there would be no adoption, that he could begin seeing the children again, and that he should start paying child support again. Since she did not do these things, he did not owe the back support. The Court decided, however, that he would be obligated to pay future support.

State's Attorney William Haine explained to board members several times exactly on what they were voting.

"You're saying that there's a finding that the proposed village is compatible with the official plan for the development of the county, and you're finding ... that the lands ...

constitute a sufficient tax base that will ensure the ability of the village to provide all the necessary municipal services to its citizens," Haine said.

For both maps, the board could and would consider nothing else, Haine said.

"The legal questions surrounding Poag and the other areas have to be settled by a court," Haine said. "You're not saying the map is legal because that's not your function to determine. It's not my function to determine."

"Your function is to decide the two criteria which you adopted pursuant to law last year," he said.

Board member Pat Polley, who has supported Mitchell's right to vote on incorporation since the fight began last summer, praised Mitchell residents.

"Without taxation and a municipal government to spearhead their activities, the people of Mitchell have depended upon individuals for leadership serving in an unofficial capacity," she said.

"With much of the vacant land in the county lying within the Mitchell area, it now presents the picture of an area whose future growth is unlimited. As the people spearheaded and developed their own community improvements ... these together made the area a more desirable place to live," she said.

Polley said Mitchell serves primarily as a residential area for people who work in Granite City and elsewhere, but because of annexations, tax increment financing districts and new industrial development, the makeup of the Mitchell area is changing. The defeated map drawn up by the cities staked their own claims without considering the people living there, while at the same time, the Mitchell map considered the people.

Other board members disagreed. Frank Laub said the Mitchell map includes people who do not want to be in Mitchell.

"I recently walked an area this past weekend and did not find one individual who wanted to be annexed into Mitchell, and this was just in my district," he said.

Granite City area board member Don Rea, whose district includes precincts in Nameoki Township, said he received many calls from people who did not want to be in Mitchell. So did board member Ray Romine, who received calls from residents who wanted to stay unincorporated.

Polley replied by presenting 2,048 petitions — 335 from Nameoki Township residents — who wanted a vote on incorporation.

"It ain't over yet," said Mitchell supporter Bob Stalcoff. "Let the people decide their self-determination for their own community and (the cities should) start worrying about what's happening in their own back yards."

Bob Stalcoff

Schreiber makes mark in go-karting

Kyle Schreiber, a lifelong resident of Granite City, recently competed in two National and two Grand National go-kart events.

And these aren't your average go-karts.

These karts travel at speeds in excess of 100 miles per hour with fiberglass bodies, gauges, clutches and racing slicks.

Schreiber is in his fourth full year of competition and has raced at such famous tracks as Daytona (Fla.), Charlotte (N.C.) Motor Speedway, Road Atlanta and Gateway International Raceway in Madison.

In one of Schreiber's most recent competitions — the World Karting Association National Enduro Series at the 3.1-mile Brainerd International Speedway on June 13-14 — he placed first in both Sprint 1 and Sprint 2 competitions.

He followed that June 20-21 in the Kartech/Mac Tools series Grand National event at Elkhart Lake (Wis.) Road America by placing first in Sprint 1 and Sprint 2 on the 4.1-mile road course.

Fields for the events included as many as 21 karts, including several national champions.

Schreiber attributes his success to help from past national champion Charley Groetke of St. Louis Karting Motors, local karting champion John Ritchie and NHRA driver Larry Davis of Graphics Unlimited in Granite City.

Schreiber's plans for the remainder of the year include races at Indianapolis, Atlanta, Charlotte and Daytona.

(See SCHREIBER, Page 28)

USA continues to roll at fourney

Australia breaks into scoring column, but USA posts fourth win in four games

By Brian Bretsch
Staff writer

BASEBALL

The shutout streak might have went down under but the USA Baseball Youth National team still posted its fourth straight victory, a 6-1 triumph against Australia in the fourth day of pool play in the ninth International Baseball Association World Youth Championships.

Prior to the game with Australia, Team USA had hammered its first three opponents 47-0. Australia snapped USA's shutout streak at 23 innings when Australia scored an unearned run in the second frame.

The scoring streak aside, Team USA entered the final day of pool with a 4-0 record and was scheduled to play Venezuela, which also had a 4-0 mark. The winner of the Venezuela-Team USA game would garner the pool's No. 1 seed going into the championship round of the tournament.

Brian Horwitz was the hitting start for the USA squad Tuesday evening against the Aussies. Horwitz drove in four runs, including a tie-breaking two-run, two-out double in the seventh inning that proved to be the game-winning hit.

The contest was knotted at 3-3 when Kevin Melillo started things for Team USA with a one-out single. Tony Richie moved Melillo to second on a ground out. Casey Kotchman walked to bring Horwitz to the dish. Horwitz ripped Australia pitcher Leigh Neuge's first pitch into the right-centerfield gap, scoring both Melillo and Kotchman to give USA a 5-3 lead.

"I was just looking for a fast ball and went with it," Horwitz said. "This was a huge win for us. We blew three straight teams out with shutouts but this tight game was good for us. It gives us confidence."

Australia scored a run in the eighth to close the margin to 5-4. Horwitz then gave his teammates a bit of a breather with a clutch two-out single to drive Melillo and make it 6-4. Horwitz's single was his fourth hit of the game and 10th of the series. Chris Patrick leads Team USA with 11 base hits.

Australia made things interesting in the top of the ninth. The Aussies had runners on first and second when USA reliever Ruben Salazar struck out Australian cleanup hitter Chris Innes to end the game.

USA tops Italy in Collinsville

By Brian Bretsch
Staff writer

Pitcher Dane Artman knew he had a tough act to follow in the USA Baseball Youth National Team's third game of pool play, Monday morning at Arthur Fletcher Field in Collinsville.

Artman watched from the bench during the first two days of the tournament as pitching teammates Mark Roberts and Matt Harrington threw shutout victories.

Roberts threw a two-hitter in the opener and Harrington tossed a one-hitter on Sunday. Artman followed suit to the best of his abilities when he and teammate Carmen Pignatiello combined for a four-hit, 13-0 victory against Italy. Artman had 10 strikeouts and Pignatiello had four.

"We have a great pitching staff. This is the best pitching I have ever seen," Artman said. "These guys are awesome. It is an honor playing with them. They are just amazing."

"The pressure was on. They wanted a shutout, a no-hitter and a perfect game. I tried but they got a couple of hits."

Artman's best inning was the fifth, in which he struck out the side. He frustrated the Italians with accuracy and off-speed pitches.

"I had a little movement on my fastball. I was hitting my corners good. I didn't have much speed but I was hitting my spots," Artman said. "I have two changeups. I have a straight change and more of a cutting change — both are my out pitch."

After giving Artman a 1-0 lead to work with after the opening inning, USA opened up the game in the second. USA sent nine batters to the dish and scored five times for a 6-0 lead.

Alhaji Turay started the frame with a walk and moved to second on a pass ball. Turay scored easily on Jared Anderson's double. Chris Patrick's infield single put runners on first third. Artman helped his own cause with a two-run double. Artman came around to score on Kevin Melillo's single. Melillo eventually closed out the scoring for the frame when touched home on Tony Richie's sacrifice fly.

Alhaji Turay led off the third with a solo shot and USA added three more runs in the third inning to go up 9-0.

Patrick, who was perfect at the plate with a 4-for-4 day, jacked a pitch out of the park for a solo homer to start the fifth.

USA closed out its scoring with three runs in the bottom of the sixth.

Jessica Thomas hit .282 as a senior infielder for MacMurray College.

Thomas caps college career

Jessica Thomas of Granite City was a letter winner for the third year as a member of the MacMurray College women's softball team.

Thomas, a senior, was an infielder for the Lady Highlanders, an NCAA Division III team that finished 16-17 overall and 10-6 for third place in the St. Louis Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Thomas graduated in May with a degree in English from MacMurray, which is located in Jacksonville.

She played in all 33 games and finished with a .282 batting average (24 for 85). Thomas scored 18 runs and drove in 10 runs. She walked seven times and struck out 10 times.

Thomas is the daughter of David and Patricia Thomas of Granite City. She is a 1994 graduate of Granite City High School.

COMMUNITY NEWS

AROUND THE AREA

Here's what happened around the Metro East in the past week:

Belleville

Haida: Event not racially motivated

Drugs. That one word sums up the recent dragging of a black teenager by three white teens in Belleville, according to the St. Clair County State's Attorney's office.

The dragging has been called a hate crime by some, drawing the attention of the Rev. Johnny Scott, president of the East St. Louis chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

However, State's Attorney Bob Haida said evidence does not support that the crime was racially motivated.

"It's very clear there was no racial motivation for the actions that took place," Haida said at a recent press conference. "Evidence shows (Baron) Manning's version of the event is not supported by anyone or anything."

Haida said that telephone and bank records, as well as a witness and videotape, did support evidence showing the incident was drug related.

However, Scott said the judicial system failed Manning. "I'm positive that because of who he was up against, the decision went the way it did," Scott said. "The resources the three teens had — their families being influential and connected with the political machine. Also, they had great power they could call on to keep their name concealed from the public."

Duplo

Waste Recovery starts rebuilding

Waste Recovery Inc. is rebuilding after a suspicious fire at its Duplo plant, a company manager told the village board Monday.

Jim Orella, general manager of Waste Recovery Illinois, said the fire late last month at the 10-acre site on Coulter Road destroyed the building and some equipment.

No one was injured in the fire, which was the second this year. Orella thanked area fire departments for containing the blaze on a windy night.

Orella said the state Fire Marshal's office is investigating the fire. The plant was not running at the time and onsite employees were at a dinner break, he said.

The plant has come under fire from the village board and residents for stockpiling wire and tires, and for leaving steel belts on roadways.

He said the wire stockpile is being reduced weekly and should be gone in three or four months. The plant is also working on ways to reduce the amount of tires stored, he said.

Orella said the plant may be running at full capacity in three months.

'Friendly suit' will detach area

A deannexation procedure for a group of north Duplo residents may take two or three months, village attorney William Hotta said.

The village annexed property on Sixth and Seventh streets and Railroad Avenue near Hough School in June 1996 as part of a larger subdivision annexation. The subdivision's legal description was not supposed to include the three streets. Residents presented petitions and legal descriptions of each property to the village board recently. Hotta requested the documents at the June 15 meeting because of the possibility that some residents might want to stay in Duplo.

The village now must file a "friendly suit" against the residents to detach the area from Duplo, Hotta said.

The suit will not cost residents anything, and they will not have to appear in court. Hotta said he would contact anyone who wanted to be present at the legal proceedings.

O'Fallon

City wants nature preserve

O'Fallon has applied for a state grant to develop a nature preserve at Rock Springs Park.

Rock Springs, a 109-acre tract of land located in eastern O'Fallon at Seventh Hills Road and Third Street, has remained undeveloped since the city purchased it in 1969.

The City Council on July 6 applied for a $200,000 Illinois Open Space and Land Acquisition grant to develop Rock Springs into a passive nature park.

The city intends to build an access drive, a maintenance free picnic pavilion similar to St. Ellen Park's, a restroom and maintenance building with utilities and a 40-space parking lot with handicapped access, said Frank Miles, the city's director of administration.

St. Clair County

Weaver makes pitch for 'purge'

It makes no sense to conduct a verification of voter registration unless it will produce the best possible results, St. Clair County Clerk candidate Llewellyn Weaver said.

"It is common to actually refer to general elections as the election year since this is when the primaries and most significant elections occur," said Weaver, a Republican from Fairview Heights.

Weaver will oppose Incumbent Sam Flood in November's general election.

Weaver said Friday he'll work to conduct "the purge" in between the primary and general election.

A purge is when an election authority contacts each voter, generally via mail, to insure the legitimacy of the voter information and status as a legitimate voter.

East St. Louis

Team to monitor problems

The city of East St. Louis is teaming up with area health care organizations to form a summer heat warning group.

The group is a coalition that includes the city's Emergency Services Disaster Agency, Catholic Urban Programs, St. Mary's Hospital of East St. Louis, Lessie Bates Neighborhood House and Simmon's Ambulance.

The city will activate the group after the heat index has been at a certain level for a set amount of days, St. Mary's Vice President of Patient Care Services Alan Biggerstaff said.

Once the group is activated, volunteers will canvass neighborhoods to ask residents about factors that may put them at high risk for heat-related health problems.

High-risk groups are children, senior citizens or those with diabetes, hypertension, epilepsy, cardiac diseases, kidney disease or respiratory problems.

NEWS IN REVIEW

Editor's note: News in Review provides a summary of some of the past week's stories. This column is intended for out-of-town readers who do not receive the Sunday and Wednesday Press-Record-Journals.

Ryan reviews area's economy

METRO EAST — Republican gubernatorial candidate and Illinois Secretary of State George Ryan recently took an aerial tour of Madison and St. Clair counties with officials from the Leadership Council Southwestern Illinois.

Ryan said protecting Scott Air Force Base and the Charles Melvin Price Support Center, dealing with barriers to economic development, investing in infrastructure and providing additional economic incentives to business were vital to the region.

He also said the state needs to provide economic incentives to bring jobs to areas like brownfields — lightly contaminated or abandoned industrial sites.

Red Cross seeks blood donors

GRANITE CITY — Hot weather and low donor turnout at recent blood drives has resulted in a severe blood shortage in the St. Louis region.

Donors, especially those with type "O" blood, are being urged by the American Red Cross to give blood "immediately."

A representative for St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City said that hospital has not been affected by the reduced supply.

Locally, two blood drives have been set for the Tri-City area. They are from 2-7 p.m. Tuesday, July 21, at the Granite City Wal-Mart; and 2-8 p.m. Monday, July 27, at the First Assembly of God, 2334 Grand.

Local man tackles Florida flames

VENICE — Harold "Dee-Dee" Koelker expected a normal vacation in Florida — swimming, lying in the sun, relaxing.

Instead, he volunteered to fight raging forest fires that were sweeping through the state in June and early July.

Koelker, Venice's assistant fire chief and a firefighter for 34 years, spent much of his three weeks in Florida driving and riding in brush trucks, going from fire to fire.

He and his wife, Venice Comptroller Roseann Koelker, went to Daytona Beach in mid-June.

Police: Woman shoots herself

GRANITE CITY — A 53-year-old woman allegedly walked out to her back yard Saturday afternoon and shot herself.

Bonnie Jean Barton, of the 2500 block of Reverses in Granite City, was pronounced dead after 2 p.m. Saturday of a gunshot wound to the head, according to police reports.

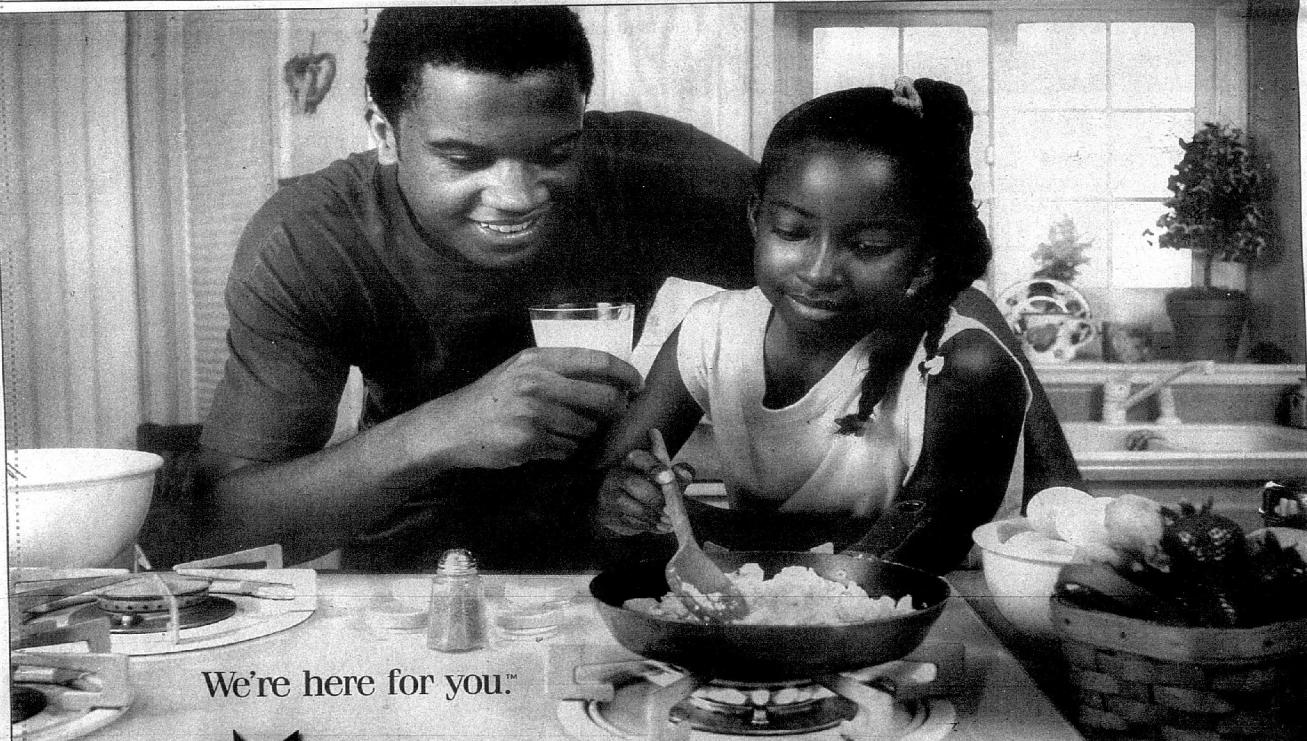

Police found no evidence to implicate anyone else in the death. Maj. Kip Pomeroy said police believe the mortal wound was self-inflicted although the coroner's report will be the final word.

Man faces gun charge

VENICE — A Madison man was charged after allegedly brandishing a gun at another man in Venice Saturday.

Eric J. Mason, 27, of the 1200 block of Calhoun, was charged with one count of misdemeanor aggravated assault.

Police Chief James Newsome said the incident may have been retaliation for a June 24 shooting in the Lee Wright Homes area.

'Zorro' returns to save the summer

Movie is a rousing, action adventure with humor

By Ronnie Roy
Staff writer

A handsome hero. A beautiful lady. A wise mentor. An evil villain. A trusty steed (well, not that trusty).

Zorro has returned. Just in time to save not only Mexico but the summer movie season.

"The Mask of Zorro" is a rousing action adventure with skillful swordplay, amazing stunts, a first-rate cast and a sense of humor.

The film opens with an exciting sequence that sets the stage for the next two hours and 16 minutes. Don Rafael Montero (Stuart Wilson), the Spanish governor of Alta California is being run out of the country, thanks to his oppressive governing and the exploits of the peoples' hero, Zorro (Anthony Hopkins). As his last act, he plans to execute three peasants in the public square, an obvious trap for the mysterious masked man.

Zorro is only too happy to oblige. Armed with whip and sword, he swings into action, freeing the peasants and fighting off a dozen of Montero's troops, with the crowd cheering him on. Among the crowd are two young brothers, who save their hero from an ambush.

In thanks, Zorro gives one of the boys a medallion before riding off on his black beauty, Tornado.

But this will be Zorro's last ride. With Montero leaving the country, Zorro is content to go back to his life as Don Diego de la Vega, with his wife, Esperanza (Julietta Rosen), and baby daughter, Elena.

But Montero has tracked Zorro to his home. Don Diego is arrested, his wife accidentally killed, his home torched and his daughter taken away by Montero.

Twenty years later, Montero returns to Alta California in triumph, with a secret plan for the territory. But before going public, he goes to the secret prison where he has kept his enemies all these years. He searches for his old enemy, but doesn't recognize him, and Don Diego uses the opportunity to escape.

Don Diego plans to kill Montero, but his now-grown daughter (Catherine Zeta-Jones), who believes Montero is her father, complicates matters.

Meanwhile, the two young boys who helped Zorro so long ago have grown up into two bandits of some renown. When one of the brothers is killed by Capt. Harrison Love (Matt Letscher), the other escapes and later runs into Don Diego in a bar.

Don Diego recognizes the medallion worn by the man, Alejandro Murieta (Antonio Banderas), and takes him to the Zorro cave (sorry, had to say that). Murieta is arrogant and angry, but he respects Don Diego and soon learns to focus that anger and to be a master with the sword.

Don Diego decides they must learn what Montero's plan is, and so Murieta must get inside Montero's circle. This requires him to learn how to be a gentleman, a skill much more difficult than swordplay.

Everything comes together as you would expect. Murieta becomes the new Zorro; Murieta and Elena fall in love; Don Diego and Montero have their moment of reckoning, as does Murieta and Capt. Love.

There's nothing new here, but it's all done so well it doesn't matter. Director Martin Campbell successfully mixes action, passion, tragedy and comedy in a whirlwind show.

The stunt work is impressive, especially in a scene in which Zorro, knocked from his horse by a tree, must bounce from horse to horse (removing the troops riding them as he goes) to catch up to his own.

Hopkins and Banderas breathe new life into the character created for pulp novels by police reporter Johnston McCulley in 1919. Both men have their haunted side, which they hide behind the mask, for Zorro is the smiling, laughing enemy of evil men.

Mini Hitch at St. Clair Fair

Here they come, the Alexander 9-Horse Mini Hitch, driven by their owner and trainer, Dale Alexander, assisted by his wife, Kandy.

The Mini Hitch can be seen at the St. Clair County Fair July 28 through Aug. 2.

The American Miniature Horse is a unique breed. They originated in Europe in the 16th Century where they were bred down from Arabian horses. They were often presented as gifts to children of royalty.

They were brought to America in the late 1800s to work in the coal mines where their unique size and strength made them a valuable asset. Each horse is able to pull three times its body weight. Usually 19 to 21 inches at birth, they can live to be 20 or 25 years old. Their popularity has grown and today there are probably 40,000 to 50,000 registered Miniature Horses in the United States.

They are preferred, Dale says, to the once popular Shetland pony because they possess a more gentle disposition and are the perfect animal for children to interact with.

Family fun is what the Alexanders' job is all about. "Parents and grandparents appreciate safe, clean fun for their kids and grandkids," they said. "It's unique." The sight of nine black horses standing only 34 inches tall outfitted in their shiny blue harnesses and pulling a custom-made wagon provokes giggles and audible delight from children and adults alike at every appearance.

The Alexander Mini Hitch travels all over the country appearing at fairs, parades, rodeos and festivals. A 45-foot, specially built trailer with nine slant stalls carries the minis, their harness and the wagon. "They are easy to maintain and they travel well," Dale said. "These guys have seen more towns and more people than most people have."

Also on tour this year with the Alexanders is "Li'l Godfrey," a tiny miniature horse.

Will 'Soldiers' the movie match merchandise?

Action figures, birthday stuff, candy, backpacks accompany film

Depending on how you look at it, "Small Soldiers" is either a movie that comes with a ton of merchandise or a ton of merchandise that happens to come with a movie.

Sound familiar?

Hollywood went through this drill a few weeks ago with "Godzilla." The critics were merciless, blasting the film as little more than an afterthought to an aggressive "size does matter" promotional campaign that overran the stores with lizard toys.

In this post-"Godzilla" environment, DreamWorks launches its first major movie and merchandise effort with "Small Soldiers," a live-action/computer animation film about toy action figures that come to life and do battle.

"This is our coming-out party," said DreamWorks' consumer products chief Brad Globe. Not to miss any opportunity for cross-promotion, Globe was sitting at a table decorated with "Small Soldiers" birthday party supplies, right down to the cupcake holders, in a company office crammed to the ceiling with other movie merchandise.

Along with the action figures and birthday paraphernalia, DreamWorks is rolling out "Small Soldiers" candy, T-shirts, backpacks, Viewmasters, beach towels, sleeping bags, little electric cars that kids can ride in, snowboards, video games, even "Small Soldiers" drapes.

It's a dizzying display that speaks to the importance this studio, which has yet to produce a major hit in its four-year history, is placing on the $60 million-plus "Small Soldiers." Critics will be keeping a sharp eye on whether "Small Soldiers," the movie, matches the merchandising.

It also underscores the potential windfall DreamWorks can enjoy if the toys take off. A successful movie merchandising campaign can bring a studio $50 million, and millions more when the video comes out. If the toys become a franchise, like "Star Wars" or TV's "Power Rangers," there's no limit to the money that can be made.

Yet DreamWorks' efforts come at a delicate time in the merchandising business. "Godzilla" showed that the critical reaction to a movie is linked as much to the merchandising as the film itself. Disney saw back-to-back disappointments with "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and "Hercules," and went slow on promoting "Mulan," with a less aggressive television campaign, to keep expectations in check.

Indeed, caution is the buzzword. Globe says that despite the large army of "Small Soldiers" merchandise, the game plan for DreamWorks has been marked by moderation, particularly in dealing with retailers.

"Our job is to get good product out there and part of it is managing the expectations and not letting the product lead the way," says Globe. "If you oversell something and it doesn't work out, you could be in trouble."

That's why, he says, DreamWorks has earmarked this one movie for major merchandising. The studio's first animated feature, "Prince of Egypt," won't have such a push when it's released at Christmas. DreamWorks

'80s pastimes: Trivial Pursuit, Whiteyball

By Kevin Carbery
Correspondent

You know you are getting older when the songs you remember from your college years are now considered "retro."

It is not only the music from my younger days that has aged. Movies like "Airplane!" and "Raiders of the Lost Ark" today are considered to be old classics by high school and college kids. TV shows such as "St. Elsewhere" and "Magnum, P.I." are long forgotten from the public's memory. The names of Gary Hart and Al Haig mean little to anyone except historians.

I am not complaining. It is a fact of life that the people and places in the public spotlight change every few years. It can be startling, however, to recall how important someone or something was in 1985, then to realize you have not thought of the person or place in question for years.

I remember the 1980s somewhat fondly. I graduated from college, went club hopping, played Trivial Pursuit and enjoyed watching Whiteyball. Believe it or not, the Cardinals used to generate excitement around town even before Mark McGwire arrived.

I never got into the "We Are the World" type of events, but I remember them. I recall killing time at video arcades playing Space Invaders and Frogger. I was thrilled when my family finally got hooked up to cable television. I can even recollect when MTV used to play music videos.

For this week's trivia quiz, the topic is the 1980s. Boy, do I feel old.

1. Who became the first woman to run for U.S. president on a major party ticket?

2. Which band had a hit with "I Ran (So Far Away)" in 1982?

3. Who said in a debate, "I knew Jack Kennedy. He was a friend of mine. And, believe me, you're no Jack Kennedy?"

to Dan Quayle.

4. Who played the Coach on "Cheers?"

5. What was the name of the space shuttle that exploded Jan. 28, 1986?

6. What author received death threats over his book "The Satanic Verses" in 1989?

7. Which famous comedian accidentally set himself on fire in 1980?

8. Who won the 1988 Academy Award for Best Supporting Actor for his performance in "A Fish Called Wanda?"

9. Who lost her 1983 Miss America title due to a scandal?

10. What food chain used the slogan "Where's the beef?" to sell its burgers during the '80s?

Answers: 1. Geraldine

Ferraro, who was Walter Mondale's running mate in 1984. They lost badly. 2. A Flock of Seagulls. 3. Lloyd Bentsen, the running mate of Michael Dukakis in the 1988 presidential election. 4. Nicholas Colasanto. 5. Challenger. 6. Salman Rushdie. 7. Richard Pryor. 8. Kevin Kline. This was one of my favorite films of the 1980s. 9. Vanessa Williams, who went on to greater fame as a singer than any other Miss America ever has achieved. 10. Wendy's.

Kevin Carbery can be heard as a regular on "The Trivia Coast-To-Coast Show" from 8 to 11 p.m. Sundays on KMOX-AM (1120).

Jackie O. exhibit slated

A 30-piece collection of historic photographs featuring Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis will be in St. Louis for six weeks.

"Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, The Making of a First Lady," will be exhibited for one week at each of the local Westfield Shoppingtown malls — West County Center, South County Center, Crestwood Plaza, Mid Rivers Mall and Northwest Plaza.

The exhibit offers a personal glimpse of Jacqueline and John Fitzgerald Kennedy. From the anonymous days on the campaign road to the moment of victory, this exhibition is the work of internationally known photographer Jacques Lowe.

Lowe was one of the few to have unlimited access to the White House during the Kennedy administration.

"Celebrate a Picture Perfect Evening" will kick off the exhibit's tour of St. Louis. The event, at West County Center, will be at 7 p.m. July 26 and benefit the AMC Cancer Research Center's "The Women's Event." Festivities will begin with food and beverages, followed by a Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis-inspired fashion show. Mandy Murphy of KTVI-TV (Channel 2) will serve as commentator for the fashion show.

Tickets to "Celebrate a Picture Perfect Evening" are $50 per person in advance or $60 the night of the event. Tickets are available at the customer service department at any Westfield mall or by calling (314) 845-3185.

After the benefit, the exhibit is free and open to the public as it makes its way around St. Louis. It is open during regular shopping center hours. The exhibit will be displayed as followed:

- July 27 through Aug. 2 — West County Center, Interstate 270 and Manchester Road;
- Aug. 3 through Aug. 10 — South County Center, Lindbergh Boulevard and Lemay Ferry Road;
- Aug. 11 through Aug. 19 — Crestwood Plaza, Watson and Sappington roads;
- Aug. 20 through Aug. 28 — Mid Rivers Mall, Interstate 70 and Mid Rivers Mall Drive;
- Aug. 29 through Sept. 6 — Northwest Plaza, Lindbergh and St. Charles Rock Road.

Kosher cuisine at ballpark

Jewish fans will be 'eating right'

By Cathy Cohn
Correspondent

When fans sing "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" Sunday at the Cardinals-Dodgers game, the "Buy me some peanuts and Cracker Jacks" line will have special significance for one group of fans there.

For the third year in a row, at this one game, kosher food will be available for those of the Jewish faith who follow strict dietary laws. Kosher beef hot dogs and other kosher foods will be sold at a special concession stand.

The idea came about when Marty Hendin, the Cardinals' vice president of community relations, envisioned a Jewish Community Day at the ballpark, in which the Jewish community could participate and raise money for charity.

With volunteers Sherri and Steve Newstead, of Creve Coeur, leading up the team, his vision translated into about 17 synagogues, Jewish schools and other organizations participating and selling tickets for the game.

A portion of the proceeds from special $11 tickets go to the Jewish Food Pantry, at the Jewish Family and Children's Services.

"The Jewish community has been responsive, and we're hoping to raise over $1,000 for the Jewish Food Pantry," Hendin said. "The kosher concession stand is especially neat for observant fans who otherwise don't get to take advantage of the concession stands."

Jewish families planning to attend the game welcomed the idea.

Rabbi Z'ev Smason, of Nusach Habi-Nai Zion Congregation in University City, is the head of a family who does not take their baseball lightly. They plan to be cheering the Cardinals on to victory while enjoying the rare opportunity to eat at the ballpark.

"Normally, the only thing a kosher person can get at the stadium are sodas," Smason said. "It will be fun not only to go to the game, but to get to eat the food there. We're looking forward to supporting the community and seeing how many kosher hot dogs we can eat."

HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, JULY 16

The emotional moon in the powerful fire sign of Aries makes a challenging aspect to both the sun and Mars in Cancer today. Try and stay clear of those who push your buttons, as arguments could appear out of nowhere. When you avoid situations you normally would not, you are left with a special feeling of confidence and personal power.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (July 16). Success keeps the cash right on coming. You apply for loans or grants in September — and surprise, surprise — you get them! A love affair begun in August is very serious by October. The critics are complimentary to you in November. Your best signs for love are Libra and Capricorn. You may hear wedding bells in the month of December.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). If you've been so wrapped up in the doing that you've forgotten how to just be, you can now find peace. There's not enough time in the day to be constantly on the phone with chatty friends. Taurus envies you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Positive affirmations make a romantic decision easier — concentrate on making a for mula out of past success. Take a mental vacation — you need time to formulate a new plan.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Friends advertise your expert services — expect more work than you can handle. Thank-you notes are overdue. Drain bad feelings out of a rivalry — competition is healthy.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). With your talent and skills, you have all the right ingredients to go into business. Alter native plans for work are solidified. Contact distant friends — you are needed more than you know.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Let a romantic partner give the financial support you need. Share information with a trouble friend. Social recognition leads to career advancement. Libras and Scorpios are the best romantic partners.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Your family stands firm on principles. Procrastination ends when you can no longer stand the present circumstances. A lover finds you irresistible — ask for anything you want.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You outshine a co-worker, but be gentle because this could backfire. A contest of wits has you studying up. Your family is more accepting of your ideas — break news or make suggestions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Love is captivating, but it will (See HOROSCOPE, Page 11D) executives felt it would be inappropriate to spin off merchandise from the show.

Retailers, meantime, are bullish on "Small Soldiers." "DreamWorks has positioned it in a way that it's not really going to have that much competition," said Michael Tabakin, director of licensing and entertainment marketing for New Jersey-based retail giant Toys R Us.

The film's computer-animated Gorgonites and Commandos are facing only French schoolgirls from "Madeline," with a limited line of dolls and accessories.

Even the "Godzilla" experience isn't scaring retailers. Tabakin says that the little-discussed reality is that while the "Godzilla" backlash made for good reading and water-cooler gossip in Hollywood, it actually didn't translate into dollars and cents.

The line of lizard figurines, key chains and sports bottles continues to do steady, if unspectacular business, with the beast easily avoiding that fate worse than bullets: the bargain table.

New 'Dr. Dolittle' is tailored to Eddie Murphy's comedic talents

In 1967, Twentieth Century Fox released an overproduced version of "Dr. Dolittle," complete with Rex Harrison talk-singing highly forgettable songs (except for "Talk to the Animals," an Oscar winner). Even little children didn't like the movie.

Now Fox is offering another "Dr. Dolittle," which bears even less resemblance to the charming Hugh Lofting stories parents have read to their children for generations. The film was obviously tailored to the extraordinary comedic talent of Eddie Murphy, who gives one of his less manic performances.

Dr. John Dolittle (Murphy) enjoys a busy practice as a physician, has a loving wife (Kristin Wilson) and two young daughters. He and his partners are on the verge of consummating a big-money deal to be taken over by a giant HMO. His money-mad fellow physician (Oliver Pratt) is pushing hard to finalize the contract.

Then something peculiar happens.

Daydreaming, Dolittle hits something while driving. He looks back and to his horror sees a dog lying in the street. The dog rises and saunters away, remarking, "Why don't you look where you're going, you bonehead?"

That's not all. Dolittle gets into a dialogue with his daughter's guinea pig. A couple of rats in a trash barrel toss sarcastic comments toward him. Cats, pigs, goats, even an ailing carnival tiger converse with him.

When his family and associates notice him speaking to animals, they are perplexed, then alarmed. The good doctor is shipped off to the funny farm. Pratt is panicked that his partner's weird behavior will spoil the HMO deal.

Thanks to special effects, the animals talk convincingly, and they are amusingly voiced by such actors as Albert Brooks, Chris Rock, Julie Kavner, Garry Shandling, Ellen DeGeneres, Norm MacDonald and John Leguizamo. Too bad the script (by Nat Mauldin and Larry Levin) doesn't match their talents.

If your notion of comedy runs to bodily odors and toilet jokes, then "Dr. Dolittle" is the movie for you. But it seems unfortunate that the gentle fantasy of Lofting's stories has been junked in favor of nasty little jokes that kids snigger about in kindergarten.

Murphy employs all the right moves to bodily odors and toilet jokes, and the reliable Platt has his moments. Also, Jeffrey Tambor, the obnoxious sidekick on "The Larry Sanders Show," does a funny stint as an overbearing veterinarian. But Ossie Davis and Kristen Wilson are wasted as Murphy's father and wife.
